SEEKS $100,000 DAMAGES FOR WIFE'S AFFECTIONS

Frank B. Lord Begins Suit Against Theodore A. Mayer, Declaring Defendant Broke Up His Home.

One hundred thousand dollars is the amount of damages chalmed in a suit filed yesterday by Frank B. Lord, a well-known Washington newspaper man, against Theodore A. Mayer.

At this sum Mr. Lord values the affections and the society of his wife and the mental anguish and loss of social reputation he is alleged to have suffered, through the attitude of Mayer, with regard to Mrs. Lord, whose affection he is alleged to have allenated from Mr. Lord.

The Lords, according to the declaration filed yesterday by Attorneys Fulton, Leckie & Cox, were married June 2, 1963, at Wilmington, Del., and Mr. Lord says that since then they lived peacefully and happily together as man and wife.

The mouth of December, 1968, as alleged by Mr. Lord, brought about the basis for

FINED FOR KICKING MAN OUT OF OFFICE

Harry M. Martin Says He Had Ample Provocation.

Despite the fact that he informed the court he had "ample provocation for kicking Mr. Cowell," Harry M. Marrin, a Maryland real estate dealer with offices in Pourteenth street, was fined $10 by Judge Mullowny for assaulting William

f. Cowell. Martin told the court Cowell had come to his office and applied several unweicome epithets to him, whereupon he in-vited him to leave the office, picking up beavy chair to emphasize his state ments. Cowell, Martin claimed, started down the steps just outside the door of his office, and then apparently changed his mind and thought he would reascend. Whereupon Martin kicked at him several timer, one of the blows being sufficient to dislocate a rib.

The judge admitted Martin had ample provocation for putting Cowell out of his office, but added he took the law too much in his own hands when he kicked him. He accordingly fined the defend-ant, with the alternative of fifteen days in the workhouse. The fine was paid.

AT CAR COMPANIES CAUSE DOWNFALL

Warns Motormen.

An overwhelming desire for willow plumes, pretty hats, ornate jewelry, dainty clothes, and other adornments was responsible for the dewnfall of little Mae Frizell, alias Mae Lucas, who was arraigned before Judge Mullowny yesterday.

Wearing the big white beaver hat, decorated with a graceful, sweeping ostrich plume, which she confessed to have partly paid for with the money she took from Vincent Portels, the girl, when required to enter a plea, answered "Guilty," in a scarcely audible tone.

Asks for Her Age.

When the assistant district attorney had explained the case to the court, the judge inquired how old she was.

"Eighteen," came the reply.

After a moment's consideration Judge Mullowny intrusted her care to Miss Poster, one of the probation officers, and suspended sentence until such time as complete investigation could be made into the girl's career.

When questioned by the probation officer the girl, leding her defiant air, broke down and told of her strungles to get along in the world, of the temptations she had withstood when she saw other garls, no prottier or older than she, wearing handsome clothes and having joetty hats and lingerie, and how she had stolen the money from Portele.
